w General H. C. Bull, a Voteran, Met a Violent Beath—Two Other Men Killed—The Pet of a Private Park Inflicts 140 Antier Wounds in Pive

The Philadelphis Times condenses from the Osborne (Kan.) Farmer the following graphic account of the fatal struggle at Bull's City, Kan., between General H. C. Bull, aided by several of his employes, and an infuriated elk. It is well known all over Kansas that General Bull, several years ago, in-closed and fitted up at great expense, a magnificent park, through which hun-dreds of visitors have walked during the dreds of visitors have walked during the last summer. The general was in the habit of strolling about the inclosure before breakfast every morning. About half-past eight o'block this forenoon he went in as usual and attended to the feeding of the wild animals, of which there is a number. Among the animals, are three elk, one a large, antiered male, a royal specimen of the moose family, and the general's particular pet. This elk never before exhibited any hostile signs, and the writer, as well as numberless others, has time and again patted him on the nose and rubbed his glossy coat. But when, at nine o'clock this morning, Robert Bricknel, one of the hired men, was standing near the main gateway he heard cries for help in a voice which he at once recognized as that of his employer. Bricknell ran forward. As he approached he saw that the elk was endeavoring to paw the general down—whether in play or not general down—whether in play or not in the same of the cash mere colors are much used in millinery, and embroidered arabesques of these gay beads cover the crowns of the same player. there is a number. General Bull evidently was on his guard, however, and so seizing two clubs Bricknell was at the general's side in a twinkling. Both men grasped their clubs, the general saying: "Now, Robert, I'll soon test his mettle." Without a sign of warning the now influciated ert, I'll soon test his mettle." Without a sign of warning the now infuriated beast made a charge at the men, striking General Rull and brooking him described and long and the discount are narrow beast made a charge at the men, striking General Bull and knocking him down with great force. The elk then drew back and made a second attack on General Bull, this time with increased force, using his antiera with terrible effect, piercing the prostrate body of the general through the breast until the prong protruded, then tossing the form high into the air and throwing him over its head. The elk then resumed his attack on Bricknell, inflicting terrible injuries, whilst doing which George Nicholas, asother employes, who had witnessed the occurrence, ran to the rescue with a heavy club of hard wood four and one-half feet long, and about two inches in diameter, with which he expected to so disable the anihal expected to the first of bright to the prostate and wine scarlet, of cardinal red, garnet and wine the discover that the discover the discover the discover the discover the discover the beach to the first of the state of the state that there are understited f he expected to so disable the ani- hold the fabric in close deep plaits.

Are not more widely distinct than the standard tonic, stimulant and alterative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and the cheap and flery local bitters which unseruphlous vendors foist upon the unwary as medicated preparations with remedial properties. The latter are usually composed in the main of half rectified alcoholic excitants, with some wretched drug combined to disguise their real flavor and are perfectly ruinous to the coats of the stomach. Hostetter's Bitters, on the contrary, has for its basis choice spirits of absolutepurity and this is modified and combined with medicinal extracts of rare excellence and botanical origin, which both invigorate and regulate the bowels, stomach and liver. They effect a radical change in the disordered physicial economy, which is manifested by a speedy improvement in the general health.
